

5 Reasons to Become an Optician

Job security and advancement

Job security and monetary advancement is a huge benefit. In the US there are not nearly enough opticians needed for the number of optical practices.

Increased opportunities in non-licensed states

Being educated in optics can support you in your future ambitions. Customers, peers, employers and store doctors find these credentials valuable.

Take the first step in your licensed state*

In licensed states the ABO is the written exam and the first step to getting your license. Imagine where your career could go!

excludes New Jersey*

You may be able to earn your certification for free

Exam fee reimbursement may be offered for registration, exams and renewals.

See what your peers are saying about the ABO (American Board of Opticianry) Program on Leonardo.

Maria Flores | Team Lead, LensCrafters at Macys

“The virtual classes themselves are extremely helpful and thorough. I got more out of the virtual classes than I think I would have gotten from the interactive modules alone.”

Michelle Haines | Associate, Pearle Vision

“I have been certified twice, over 10 years ago. Both times I took the test I did both written and in person prep classes, but this course was so much more comprehensive. I honestly believe that if someone follows this whole course they will pass the test without any problems.”

Liana Jones (ABO-C & NCLE) | Licensed Optician

“The ABO program is amazing. The live sessions, study guide* & Leonardo live lessons made me 100% prepared to pass the exam. I then got my license and NCLE!”
